According to popular legend, in 1776, Betsy Ross was approached by George Washington, Robert Morris, and George Ross to sew the first flag featuring thirteen stars arranged in a circle to represent the original colonies. This story was first publicized many years after the war, primarily by her grandson, William Canby, in 1870. Despite its popularity, historians have debated the authenticity of this claim due to a lack of contemporary documentation.

Details of the Flag Story
