History and Origins of Women Thou Art Loosed

The women thou art loosed movement was founded by Dr. T.D. Jakes, a prominent pastor, author, and filmmaker, with its roots tracing back to the early 1990s. Initially launched as a church-based ministry, it sought to provide spiritual guidance and emotional support for women struggling with various personal and societal issues. The phrase "women thou art loosed" itself is drawn from a biblical passage in the Gospel of Luke, symbolizing liberation from bondage and oppression. Over time, the ministry expanded to include conferences, workshops, and eventually a feature film released in 2004 that dramatized themes of healing and redemption.

Women thou art loosed 2022 builds upon this rich history, integrating contemporary perspectives and addressing the evolving needs of women in today's world. The ministry's commitment to fostering empowerment through faith remains central, while also embracing inclusivity and holistic wellness.
